

Antenatal Obstetrician Care Among People Who Experience Incarceration in Ontario: A Retrospective Cohort Study

Laura Jane McLeod, Katherine E. McLeod, Jessica Liauw, Alison Carter Ramirez, Mary Coll-Black, and Fiona G. Kouyoumdjian. Journal of Obstetrics and Gynaecology Canada (2023).

<https://doi.org/10.1016/j.jogc.2023.02.013>

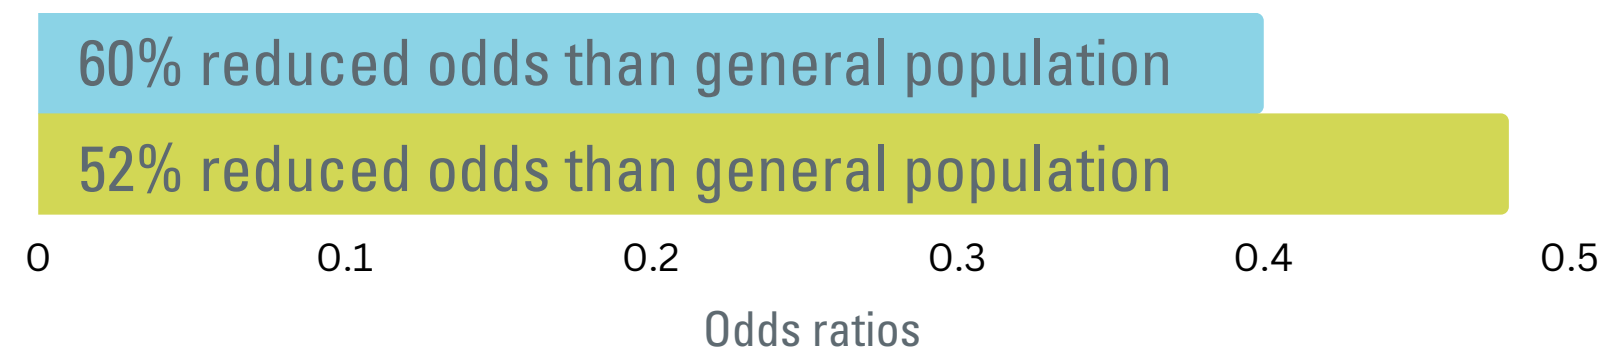

Family Medicine

David Braley Primary Care Research Collaborative

People who had experienced incarceration were less likely to receive antenatal care from an obstetrician during their pregnancy compared to people in the general population of Ontario.

Likelihood of receiving antenatal care by an obstetrician during pregnancies between 2005 and 2015 among persons released from provincial correctional facilities in Ontario in 2010

- Prison pregnancies: part of pregnancy overlapped with time incarcerated in provincial correctional facility;
- Prison control pregnancies: no part of pregnancy overlapped with time incarcerated in provincial facility, but pregnant person was released from custody in 2010;